Introduction

These 75 prompts are designed to be your on-demand business therapist, strategic advisor, and accountability partner. Each prompt transforms AI into a specialized coach addressing the unique mental and strategic challenges entrepreneurs face daily.

How to use this pack effectively:

Copy any prompt into your preferred AI tool (ChatGPT, Claude, or similar). Answer the questions honestly and thoroughly. The AI will respond with personalized insights, frameworks, and action steps based on your specific situation.

For best results, keep a dedicated journal for your responses. Revisit prompts weekly or when facing recurring challenges. The real transformation happens when you consistently engage with these frameworks, building mental resilience through regular reflection and strategic thinking.

These aren't generic productivity tips—they're mental frameworks specifically designed for the isolated, high-stakes reality of entrepreneurship. Use them when you're stuck, burned out, or simply need clarity.

SECTION 2

Energy & Burnout Management

"I'm an entrepreneur experiencing burnout. Help me conduct a comprehensive energy audit. Ask me about my typical week, then identify energy vampires (tasks/people draining me) versus energy generators (what energizes me). Create a specific action plan to eliminate or delegate two energy vampires and increase time spent on generators by 20%."

"I work constantly but feel unproductive. Interview me about my current work patterns, sleep, breaks, and results. Then design a personalized sustainable work rhythm that maximizes my productive hours while preventing burnout. Include specific time blocks, rest protocols, and weekly capacity limits."

"Help me create an early warning system for burnout. Ask about physical, emotional, and behavioral signs I've experienced before previous burnouts. Then build a three-tier alert system: yellow (caution), orange (immediate action needed), red (emergency brake). Include specific interventions for each level."

"I'm currently burned out and need to recover while keeping my business running. Ask about my business essentials, resources, and constraints. Design a 14-day recovery protocol that maintains critical operations while creating genuine recovery space. Include what to pause, delegate, or automate."

"I struggle with work-life boundaries as a founder. Interview me about where boundaries break down most. Then help me design specific boundary systems including communication protocols, sacred time blocks, and scripts for saying no to customers, partners, and my own impulses."

"I feel guilty resting. Challenge my beliefs about rest and productivity. Then help me design a personalized rest practice that actually restores my energy. Ask about what genuinely relaxes me, then create a weekly rest minimum with specific activities and scheduling."

"Stress accumulates in my body with no release. Ask about my physical stress symptoms and current outlets. Design a daily 10-minute stress processing routine combining breathwork, movement, or other somatic practices that fit my personality and schedule."

"I overcommit constantly. Help me calculate my actual weekly capacity. Ask about all my commitments, how long tasks truly take, and non-negotiable personal time. Then show me my current overcommitment percentage and help me right-size commitments."

"Restructure my schedule based on energy, not just time. Ask about my natural energy patterns throughout the day and week. Then help me align my most demanding work with peak energy, and design low-energy task lists for inevitable dips."

"I need recovery practices that fit between meetings and tasks. Based on my schedule and preferences, design five 5-minute micro-recovery practices I can use throughout my workday to prevent energy depletion before it becomes burnout."

SECTION 3

Decision-Making Frameworks

"I'm paralyzed by a significant business decision. Walk me through creating a custom decision matrix. Ask about the decision, my values, success metrics, and key factors. Then build a weighted scoring system that reveals the objectively best choice based on what matters most to me."

"Help me map all possible consequences of this decision. Interview me about the choice I'm facing. Create a detailed tree showing best-case, worst-case, and most-likely scenarios for each option at 1 month, 6 months, and 1 year. Include mitigation strategies for worst cases."

"I make decisions that logically make sense but feel wrong. Help me clarify my core business values by asking probing questions. Then evaluate my pending decision against these values. Show me where alignment exists and where compromises occur."

"I can't tell if I'm listening to intuition or fear. Interview me about this decision and my emotional responses. Help me distinguish between fear-based resistance and genuine intuitive warning. Provide specific questions to ask myself when making future decisions."

"I'm overthinking a decision. Help me assess its reversibility. Ask about the decision, then categorize it as reversible, partially reversible, or irreversible. For reversible decisions, give me permission to decide quickly. For irreversible ones, create a thorough evaluation process."

"I have no advisors to consult. Simulate a council of three experts relevant to my decision. First, understand my situation. Then provide perspective from each expert archetype, challenging me from different angles. Finally, synthesize their advice into clear recommendations."

"Use the regret minimization framework. Ask about my decision, then project me forward to age 80. From that perspective, help me evaluate which choice I'd regret least. Include questions about what really matters in my life beyond just business success."

"Create a decision journal entry template for my current choice. Include sections for context, options considered, decision criteria, emotional state, final choice, reasoning, and predicted outcomes. In 90 days, this will help me analyze my decision-making patterns."

"I feel trapped by constraints in this decision. List what I think my constraints are. Then systematically challenge each one—which are real versus assumed? Help me find creative options that emerge when false constraints are removed."

"Design a gut check protocol for me. When I'm overthinking, I need a structured way to access my intuition. Create a step-by-step process involving physical awareness, emotional checking, and intuitive listening that yields a clear yes/no/not-yet answer."

Mental Clarity & Focus

"I have mental overwhelm. Let me brain dump everything on my mind. Then help me categorize items into: actionable tasks, decisions needed, things to delegate, things to delete, and things outside my control. Create a prioritized action list from the actionable items."

"I'm doing too much that doesn't matter. Interview me about all my current projects and activities. Apply the 80/20 rule to identify the 20% generating 80% of my results. Help me create a stop-doing list and a focus list."

"My brain feels full. Audit my cognitive load by asking about recurring decisions, information I'm tracking, and commitments I'm remembering. Identify opportunities to automate, systematize, or externalize information. Design systems to free up mental RAM."

"Design a weekly reset ritual for me. Ask about my work style and schedule. Create a 30-minute end-of-week practice that includes reflection, completion, planning, and mental clearing so I can truly disconnect and start each week fresh."

"I'm constantly interrupted. Help me design protected focus blocks. Ask about my deepest work, when I'm sharpest, and what I control. Create a realistic weekly schedule with three 90-minute focus blocks, including preparation and protection protocols."

"Identify my distraction patterns. Ask about when and how I get distracted. Categorize my distractions as external interruptions, internal impulses, or avoidance behaviors. For each category, provide specific countermeasures tailored to my situation."

"I'm scattered across too many priorities. Use the focusing question: What's the ONE thing I can do this week such that by doing it, everything else becomes easier or unnecessary? Interview me to find this, then build my week around protecting it."

"Guide me through mental clutter clearing. Ask about unfinished projects, unmade decisions, and unresolved conflicts consuming mental energy. Help me identify which to complete, cancel, or delegate. Create closure on three items draining my focus."

"I ruminate on problems without progress. Identify my rumination triggers and patterns through questions. Then create personalized pattern interrupts—specific physical or mental actions that break rumination loops and redirect toward productive problem-solving."

"Paradoxically, constraints create clarity. Ask about my current business situation. Then impose helpful constraints: if I could only work 20 hours weekly, what would I focus on? This reveals what truly matters versus busywork masquerading as productivity."

SECTION 5

Motivation & Purpose Reconnection

"I've lost connection to why I started. Take me back to my origin story. Ask about what problem I wanted to solve, who I wanted to help, and what success looked like. Help me reconnect with that initial fire and identify where I've drifted from it."

"I forget my business matters. Interview me to collect evidence of actual impact I've created—customers helped, problems solved, lives changed. Compile this into a personal impact statement I can revisit when motivation wanes."

"My vision feels stale or lost. Help me refresh or recreate my business vision. Ask probing questions about what I want to build, who I want to become, and what success truly means to me now. Craft a compelling vision statement that reignites excitement."

"Connect my daily tasks to deeper meaning. Ask about my current activities and my core values. Create a meaning map showing how even mundane tasks connect to my larger purpose. This creates motivation through understanding significance."

"I never acknowledge wins. Design a personalized celebration ritual. Ask about my wins, big and small. Create a practice for acknowledging progress weekly. Include specific reflection questions and a way to physically mark achievements."

"Facilitate a dialogue with my future self. Ask about my current struggles. Then respond as my future self who has overcome these challenges, offering perspective, encouragement, and specific advice. Include what I'll be grateful I did now."

"Clarify my unique contribution. What can I offer that few others can? Interview me about my skills, experiences, and perspectives. Help me articulate my unique value proposition—not just for marketing, but for personal motivation and direction."

"My metrics kill motivation. Ask about how I currently measure success. Help me design motivating progress metrics that balance growth goals with sustainability, impact, and wellbeing. Create a dashboard that makes me want to look at it."

"I'm questioning my commitment to this business. Don't convince me either way. Instead, facilitate an honest exploration of whether to stay, pivot, or leave. Ask hard questions, then help me make a conscious, renewed commitment or a strategic exit plan."

"I feel uninspired. Audit my inspiration inputs—what I read, watch, and consume. Identify what depletes versus energizes me. Create a 30-day inspiration diet: specific content, people, and experiences to add and remove to reignite creative energy."

SECTION 6

Strategic Thinking & Problem-Solving

"I'm stuck on a problem. First, let me explain it. Then help me reframe it from five different perspectives: customer's view, competitor's view, investor's view, 10x bigger scale, and 10x smaller scale. New frames often reveal invisible solutions."

"What am I assuming that isn't true? Interview me about my business challenge. List all assumptions embedded in how I'm thinking about it. Systematically challenge each assumption. Often, our constraints are assumptions, not reality."

"I make first-level decisions. Help me think second and third order. Ask about a decision or strategy. Then explore: if I do this, what happens next? And then what? And then? Map the chain of consequences I'm not seeing."

"Turn my constraint into an advantage. Ask about my biggest business constraint—time, money, team, expertise. Then help me creatively solve or reframe it. Many successful strategies emerge from working with constraints, not despite them."

"I feel commoditized. Help me identify or create sustainable competitive advantage. Ask about my business, market, and capabilities. Then identify advantages I have but don't leverage, or advantages I could build based on my unique position."

"I need to plan for uncertainty. Ask about my business and key uncertainties in my market. Create three distinct scenarios: optimistic, pessimistic, and most likely. For each, provide strategic actions I should take now to prepare or capitalize."

"Apply Theory of Constraints to my business. Interview me about my operations, sales, delivery, and growth. Identify the single biggest bottleneck limiting my entire system. Then design specific interventions to address this constraint first."

"I want everything. Help me understand strategic trade-offs. Ask about my goals and strategies. Identify inherent conflicts—where pursuing one objective works against another. Help me make conscious choices about which trade-offs align with my priorities."

"I keep adding complexity. Use via negativa—innovation through subtraction. Ask about my business processes, offerings, and activities. Identify what to remove, simplify, or stop to create more value, profit, or sanity."

"Apply a powerful mental model to my situation. First, understand my current challenge. Then introduce a relevant mental model—Pareto Principle, Inversion, First Principles, or others. Show me how applying this lens reveals new insights or solutions."

SECTION 7

Emotional Resilience & Mindset

"I feel like a fraud. Help me examine my imposter syndrome objectively. Ask about specific doubts and fears. Then collect counter-evidence—proof of competence and earned achievements. Create a reality-based confidence statement I can reference."

"I'm stuck on a failure. Guide me through productive failure processing. Ask what happened, what I learned, what was in my control, what wasn't. Transform this failure into specific wisdom and actionable improvements without shame or rumination."

"Comparison is destroying my confidence. Identify who I compare myself to and why. Challenge the validity and usefulness of these comparisons. Help me create personalized success metrics based on my unique path, not someone else's highlight reel."

"I forget I'm resilient. Ask about previous challenges I've overcome. Document my resilience history—problems solved, obstacles navigated, comebacks made. Compile this into a resilience resume proving I can handle current challenges too."

"My anxiety feels overwhelming. Help me externalize and examine it. Ask what I'm anxious about. Categorize each worry as productive concern requiring action or unproductive rumination requiring release. Create action steps for the former, letting-go rituals for the latter."

"My thinking may be distorted. Describe my current negative thoughts. Identify cognitive distortions present—catastrophizing, all-or-nothing thinking, overgeneralization. For each, provide the reality-based reframe. Teach me to catch these patterns myself."

"Negativity dominates my thinking. Excavate genuine gratitude in my business, not toxic positivity. Ask specific questions about what's working, who's helped me, and small wins. Build a personalized gratitude practice that actually shifts my mindset."

"I'm harshly self-critical. Create a self-compassion practice for entrepreneurs. Ask how I talk to myself during setbacks. Contrast this with how I'd support a friend. Design specific self-compassion statements and practices for common entrepreneurial challenges."

"I don't see my growth. Create a growth evidence tracking system. Ask about skills I've developed, knowledge I've gained, and capabilities I've built. Design a quarterly reflection practice that makes growth visible, not just outcomes."

"My story about myself is limiting. Identify the narrative I tell about who I am as a business owner. Challenge limiting parts. Help me rewrite my story based on evidence and possibility, creating an empowering narrative that drives different actions."

SECTION 8

Relationship & Support Systems

"I'm isolated in my entrepreneurial journey. Audit my current connections and support systems. Identify isolation gaps. Create a specific plan to build or strengthen five key relationships—mentor, peer, accountability partner, and others relevant to my needs."

"I need mentorship but don't have access. Help me create a mentor manifesto—exactly what I need guidance on. Then design creative ways to get this wisdom: books, podcasts, virtual mentorship, async advice, or informal coffee meetings."

"I lack accountability. Design an accountability system for me. Ask about my goals and work style. Create specific accountability mechanisms—tracking methods, reporting structures, or accountability partnerships—that actually work for my personality."

"I operate in a feedback vacuum. Help me create feedback loops. Ask what feedback I need most. Design specific ways to gather input from customers, peers, and others without formal structures. Include exact questions to ask."

"I need community. Based on my business, location, and preferences, identify three specific communities—online or offline—where I could connect with relevant peers. Include how to find them, join, and actually build relationships, not just lurk."

"I need help but resist delegating. Explore my delegation blocks through questions. Address each objection. Then identify three tasks I could delegate this month. Create specific hiring or delegation plans, including where to find help."

"I need to set boundaries but don't know how. Ask about specific boundary challenges with customers, partners, or others. Create word-for-word scripts for common scenarios—saying no, managing expectations, or protecting my time."

"Some relationships drain me. Audit my professional relationships. Categorize each as energizing, neutral, or draining. For draining relationships, create specific strategies: boundaries, reduction, repair, or removal. Prioritize protecting my relational energy."

"I'm unclear on when to collaborate versus work solo. Interview me about my strengths, weaknesses, and current projects. Identify what genuinely benefits from collaboration versus what I'm better doing alone. Create decision criteria for future situations."

"I'm bad at asking for help. Identify what help I need but haven't requested. Address blocks to asking. Then create a support request framework: how to identify needs, who to ask, and specific language for making requests that feel authentic to me."

SECTION 9

Sustainable Growth & Long-term Vision

"Design my ideal lifestyle business. Ask about my life priorities, income needs, and work preferences. Then architect a business model that serves my life, not the other way around. Include revenue targets, time commitments, and structure."

"I'm pursuing growth that might break me. Evaluate my growth plans against my capacity, resources, and wellbeing. Identify where scaling plans are unsustainable. Help me design growth that's ambitious yet doesn't require sacrificing health or sanity."

"I've never considered my exit. Explore possible exit strategies even if exit isn't immediate. Ask about my goals and timeline. Discuss options: sale, succession, lifestyle business, shutdown. Understanding possible endings creates clarity about the journey."

"What legacy am I building? Help me think beyond quarterly goals to long-term impact. Ask what I want to be known for, what I want to create that lasts, and what matters beyond financial success. Use this to guide present decisions."

"Redefine success sustainably. Challenge conventional success metrics. Ask what success means to me personally, not just societally. Create a holistic success dashboard balancing business growth with health, relationships, fulfillment, and contribution. Make this my actual scoreboard."

SECTION 10

Section 9: Integration & Implementation

"Help me design daily resilience rituals. Based on everything discussed, create morning and evening practices that prevent burnout. Include boundaries, reflection, energy management, and decision protocols. Make these non-negotiable but realistic. Build my operating system for sustainable entrepreneurship."

"Build my personal decision framework. Analyze decisions I've struggled with. Create criteria and processes that simplify future choices. Include values alignment, resource assessment, and gut-check questions. Turn decision-making from exhausting to systematic."

"Create my ongoing energy audit system. Design weekly check-ins to monitor physical, emotional, mental, and spiritual energy levels. Include warning signs, recovery strategies, and adjustment triggers. Make energy management as important as financial management."

"Turn boundary insights into enforceable systems. Help me implement time boundaries, client boundaries, and personal boundaries. Create scripts, policies, and communication templates. Make boundaries structural, not just aspirational."

"Activate my support system strategically. Map current and needed support across categories: emotional, strategic, tactical, and accountability. Create specific asks and connection plans. Transform isolation into intentional community."

Building Your Resilience Dashboard

"Guide my weekly resilience assessment. Ask about energy levels, boundary violations, decision quality, support accessed, and joy experienced. Identify patterns and adjustment needs. Make this my entrepreneurial health screening."

"Facilitate my monthly business and wellbeing review. Assess progress on business goals AND resilience practices. Celebrate wins, analyze struggles, adjust systems. Ensure I'm building business success and personal sustainability equally."

"Lead my quarterly vision check. Revisit core values, long-term goals, and current direction. Assess alignment or drift. Make strategic adjustments before minor misalignments become major crises. Keep the long view clear."

Crisis Management & Recovery

"I'm hitting a wall. Guide immediate burnout triage. Help me identify urgent needs, create short-term relief plan, and establish recovery timeline. Be direct about what must stop, start, or change now."

"I'm frozen and can't decide. Break this paralysis using forced clarity questions. Strip away complexity, identify real constraints, expose hidden fears. Help me make the decision I'm avoiding."

"Help me reframe this crisis. When everything feels overwhelming, guide me to find opportunity, lesson, or necessary redirection. Not toxic positivity—realistic perspective that restores agency and hope."

"Something failed significantly. Help me process this productively. Separate identity from outcome, extract lessons, identify controllable factors, and plan forward movement. Turn failure into fertilizer, not identity."

"My confidence is shattered. Guide strategic confidence reconstruction. Inventory past wins, current strengths, and evidence of capability. Challenge distorted thinking. Rebuild realistic self-belief through evidence, not empty affirmations."

SECTION 11

"As my business grows, optimize my leadership energy. Identify highest-value activities, delegation opportunities, and energy drains. Design my role for maximum impact with sustainable energy investment."

Relationship & Communication

"Prepare me for a difficult conversation. Understand the situation, identify my goals, anticipate responses, and create communication scripts. Help me be clear, compassionate, and boundaried."

Financial Resilience

"Address financial anxiety strategically. Understand my numbers, create realistic projections, identify control levers, and establish financial boundaries. Transform financial fog into clarity and action."

"Develop pricing that supports my wellbeing. Calculate true costs including my time, energy, and life needs. Price for sustainability, not just market rates. Value my work appropriately."
